UPDATES from THE SCENE

Hunter Brookbank

It's February – still not free of the ice of winter and the occasional blizzard, Cincinnati has been couped up inside awaiting the thaw of Spring. Nonetheless, the cold has not deterred the band from making our way out to numerous venues this past January to continue the good times, see the people, and keep the music coming.

We visited Goose & Elder in Over the Rhine on Wednesday, January 19, where we packed in to a tight little corner near the back bar area to deliver the night's soundtrack. As we set up, the encouraging and familiar banter with the crowd got our spirits ready – and the spirits certainly would flow as the night went on! The sun went down, and soon the bar filled up as friends arrived and passersby outside popped in for a quick listen. This was Goose & Elder's first time having live music, and we were glad to function as the guinea pigs. Based off the number of free drinks coming our way from the bartenders and gig-goers, I'd say things went pretty well! Playing a set featuring our 70s Classic rock covers, early-2000s bangers, and some good old originals, we made do as a three piece for the night while Sam is away getting some fresh mountain air in North Carolina.

After Goose & Elder and a night at one of our new favorite bars in the area, Hi-Fi (opened in Mt. Adams by the same owner as Philanthropub), we would haul in to Southgate House Revival the following Saturday for a concert whose proceeds went towards tornado relief in Western Kentucky. This gig was also a first, as we had never played Southgate House before (though had heard a lot of good things in the past). The stage is the real deal, with more than enough room to move around and have a good time. It almost felt like we were too small standing as a three piece on stage, but the sound certainly wasn't. We performed a number of originals that night, one of which, a Frank original called Great Unknown, can still be seen live on YouTube! It was a great night performing alongside Fury & Solace, St. Mary St. Michael, Beasts of Joy, and bluegrass combo Nicholas Johnson and the Same Old Strangers.

We spent the next week rehearsing for the following weekend, with a house show on Friday the 28th and studio recording at The Monastery on Sunday. The night of the house show, which took place at White Lighter's house (coincidentally featuring White Lighter, as well as the rising Clifton ska-punk rockers of Jazz Club Drug Ring), a sheet of snow blanketed the streets of Clifton. Still, it didn't deter everyone from coming out for what would become one of the largest indoor house shows we have seen yet at White Lighter's. As the first house show of 2022, it was a great sign that people are still rearing to get out and see the music in the area, and we're looking forward to what's to come this Spring.

Speaking of things to come, our recording at The Monastery the next Sunday served exactly that purpose. For almost two years now, we have amassed a number of songs that will comprise the releases we have planned for you all this year. With ample material, it's only now a matter of the recording process, and soon, you will be hearing the newest TasteFull music to hit the scene. We spent all of Sunday recording two new songs, the Zeppelin-esque Being with You, and something special that we are very excited to get out to you – the long-awaited summer banger, Black Seat Cadillac.

For now, the next slotted release we have waiting for you will be Lost Another Friend ("the soul song," as we have nicknamed it), and Carousel. These tunes will reach your ears at the end of March, and we absolutely cannot wait for you to hear them. For the next installment of the TasteFull discography, show announcements, and updates on all things TasteFull, be sure to follow us on Instagram and Facebook (if you haven't already), and keep rockin out with us whenever you get the chance. 2022 is going to be a very special year for us and for the Clifton music scene, and we're looking forward to sharing all of it with you!

Do not miss this - this will be a great time and a chance to come support a new up-and-coming Cincy bar and venue.
